

IMPORTANT WARNING!

It has recently become apparent that security conscious individuals are installing strong boxes (such as those commonly found in hotel bedrooms) in the belief that they will provide security for their belongings. Whilst such boxes may be better than nothing for the prevention of pilfering, they can at the same time actually increase the risk of loss in the event of a break-in.

We have been contacted by neighbours of clients in London who had misguidedly placed all the family antique jewellery in a wardrobe strong box only to lose everything when intruders broke in during the early evening, wrenched the box from the cupboard and walked off with the lot. From the intruder's point of view, owners of these boxes are simply being helpful enough to gather all their valuables into one convenient receptacle, thus saving the bother of searching the flat or house.

If it is your intention to secure cash and jewellery against intruders DO NOT BE MISLED INTO A FALSE SENSE OF SECURITY BY A STRONG BOX MASQUERADING AS A SAFE! Contact us as quickly as possible for advice and assistance on real safes which carry EN Standard Grades and insurance approval.
